W. A. HARRIMAN, head of the Union Pacific Railroad, first to take seriously the building of light railroad trains and developing high speed, has, as this is written, a streamline train, driven by a nine hundred horsepower Diesel motor, on the way from Los Angeles to New York, and expected to make the run in fifty-seven and one-half hours. The time from Los Angeles to New York hitherto has been four nights and three days. Mr. Harriman's father, who made the Union Pacific the railroad that it is, would like to know about that. And W. A. Harriman, a very young man, will live to see his fifty-seven and one-half hour run out to twenty-four hours, and lower.

It is impossible to exaggerate the value that railroad rights-of-way, with speed unlimited, would possess if they were really used. They would make automobiles or motor bus competition with railroads impossible.

The winning British plane flew from London to Paris in 22 hours and 19 minutes, and in 2000 miles more to Melbourne. Will Rogers, resulting in the fine performance of American planes, and commenting on that extraordinary flying, nearly half way around the world, remarks: "Watch Britain; he will have Japan flying into California for lunch."

This country knows now that it can be done, and the question what is to be done to make it too dangerous for anybody to do in places here, assuming that we cannot prevent their coming.

In praising fliers, don't forget the Italian Lieutenant Francesco Agello, beating his own record by raising it to 440 miles an hour. That is real flying, and you need not be big and heavy to do it. Agello stands five feet four, weighs 160 pounds.

But do not believe that Mussolini is satisfied. "Satisfied" is a word not in his dictionary. He has put Agello at the head of an "air speed school" in Rome and reach New York in 24 hours. Or Mr. Rogers' planes from Tokyo could leave Rome at 8 a. m. and reach San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland and Seattle that afternoon.

One cheerful item for newspaper publishers, looking into the wind for favorable straws, Frank P. Barham, who manages the Los Angeles Evening Herald and Express, wants you to know that business is good in his city. For instance, the Los Angeles "Paper Company" paid in Mr. Barham's paper yesterday one advertisement: eleven pages.

Wise businessmen know that the first thing to have with people want, and the second is to let them know you have it, and need new for all publishers is good news for all publishers and for all business.

Mr. Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, spoke kindly to the four thousand bankers in Washington and wanted to cooperate with them, "all little pals together." A year ago he was not so gentle. The bankers, gathered to hope and cry together, were looking forward to the President's talk, hoping that this would be his right to "hear like any sucking dove."

You may sympathize with bankers, their millions lying idle. They say, a little. They cry, a little. You criticize us for not lending money. We lend it on unsecured security, you threaten to put us in jail. We don't you know. We are safe, let the government guarantee their safety and we will lend freely."

Abie Kahabala said to his father-in-law, "The banker says that now will write your name." Continued on Page 8, Column 5

LEGISLATES FOR CASH BONUS

IMMEDIATE PAYMENT DEMANDS CHEERED

International News Service
Miami, Fla., Oct. 25—With rousing enthusiasm, the American Legion, at its 16th annual convention today, called for an immediate $2,000,000,000 cash settlement of the bonus as a means of hastening recovery from the economic crisis.

The Legion declared it urged cash payment now because President Roosevelt had committed to a policy of restoring the nation to recovery. The veterans asserted payment of the cash bonus would increase the public's purchasing power, relieve distress and lighten the relief burden of states and cities.

WOULD CANCEL INTEREST
It also demanded cancellation of all interest charges on the $1,674,000,000 loans already borrowed by veterans on their certificates. The official report was announced as follows:

Against, 183.
For, 887.
The text of the resolution read: "Whereas, the immediate cash payment of the adjusted service certificates will hasten recovery by increasing the purchasing power of millions of the consuming public, distributed uniformly throughout the nation; and will provide relief for the holders thereof who are in dire need and distress because of the present economic conditions; and will lighten the burden of the states and cities, counties and states are now required to carry for relief and...

'Kingfish's' Senate Aid Beaten Up

By Associated Press
New Orleans, Oct. 25—United States Senator John H. Overton, colleague of Senator Huey P. Long, and Burt W. Henry, attorney and president of the House Election League of New Orleans, engaged in a furious fist fight today in the hotel lobby of the Roosevelt Hotel.

The fight lasted for a minute or two and both men were swung and hard kicks landed. Overton was carried to his hotel room badly battered. The senator stated that the fight was caused by the refusal to apologize to Henry for remarks he made on the floor of the United States Senate.

Overton was suffering from a cut over the right eye, a badly lacerated mouth and a bruise on the cheek. He was being profusely sworn at by his room and given medical attention.

JAPAN COTTON MENACES U. S.
Japan and her cotton competitors constitute a serious menace to the American cotton textile industry, Russell T. Fisher, secretary of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, declared today at the annual meeting of that organization at the Copple Plaza.

Each enactment of the 1930 tariff law, Secretary Fisher pointed out, Japanese imports have steadily increased, and during the first seven months of this year 2,310,351 bales were brought into the United States.

"In the struggle ahead," he said, "we must not be lulled by the fact that Japan will take the United States market for a time."

New Lindbergh Evidence Revealed

BANKERS ASK BALANCED BUDGET

By Associated Press
Washington, Oct. 25—American bankers replied today to President Roosevelt's request for a loaning of private credit by unanimously adopting resolutions promising to co-operate with the government, but demanding a balanced budget.

While the bankers' resolutions were being adopted, the president's immediate task, said, that they demanded that the government's budget be balanced and that the government and declaring a...

Miss McAdoo Hint in Love Bar

Hollywood, Oct. 25—Ellen Wilson McAdoo was her Philippine-born fiancé, Rafael Lopez de Onate, believe that he will find a way to admit that their marriage had been indefinitely postponed, following refusal of the Riverside County clerk to issue a license to the couple.

Miss McAdoo and I have appeared in each other. Neither of us is backing out."

The blonde granddaughter of the late President, Woodrow Wilson confirmed the postponement announced by her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Wilson McAdoo, divorced.

Named as 'Ransom John'

By Associated Press
New York, Oct. 25—The New York Evening Journal in a story published today said the state of New Jersey's "trump card" against Bruno Richard Hauptmann is proof that the Lindbergh baby was murdered in his crib.

What the evidence is could not be ascertained, the Journal added.

But the evidence, the newspaper stated, is of the utmost importance in supporting the charge that the baby's murder was premeditated.

The nature of the evidence, it was further said, will be guarded until Hauptmann is brought to trial on January 2.

'Jafsie' Identifies Hauptmann as 'John'

By Associated Press
Trenton, N. J., Oct. 25—Dr. John F. Condon yesterday identified Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the man "John" to whom he paid $50,000 ransom money for the promised return of the Lindbergh baby, it was learned today from an authoritative source.

Dr. Condon, known as "Jafsie," made the positive identification after an hour and a half's conversation with the German alien, immediately after Hauptmann had pleaded "not guilty" to the charge of murder in the courthouse at Flemington.

Details of the conversation between the two were not revealed but it was understood that "Jafsie" talked about many of the things that he and the intermediary discussed on that fateful night as they sat on a bench in a Bronx cemetery.

Dr. Condon had talked with Hauptmann in the Bronx county jail soon after the capture of the man, but at that time said he was not certain of the identification.

GRIP LINDER LAID TO HAUPTMANN

By Associated Press
New York, Oct. 25—The record-breaking streamlined train of the Union Pacific, the M-1000, rolled into Grand Central Station at 9:58 today, completing its cross-country run from Los Angeles to New York city in 56 hours and 56 minutes.

The running time for the coast-to-coast trip set a new record, by 14 hours and 31 minutes over the previous mark set in 1908, when the late E. H. Harriman, then chairman of the Union Pacific, traveled from San Francisco to New York city in 71 hours and 27 minutes.

Abward the new record-setter today was W. A. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific, and three others on charges involving two young Lynn girls. A juror notified that he was a brother of the defendant Powers.

Mr. Hearst Gives His Reasons For Supporting Gov. Merriam In California Elections

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—Warning that Upon Sinclair's election as governor would be a "genuine disaster" to California, William Randolph Hearst explained why he is supporting Governor Frank M. Merriam, regular Republican nominee.

The publisher's statement is contained in a letter to Raymond L. Haight, Independent Republican, running for election as the Progressive-Commonwealth candidate.

Mr. Hearst points out that the fight plainly lies between Merriam and Sinclair and urges Haight to "co-operate" in the election of an honest and capable governor.

Mr. Hearst's letter follows:

October 23, 1934.

Mr. Raymond L. Haight,
No. 458 South Spring Street,
Los Angeles, California.

My Dear Sir:

I discussed the political situation with a friend of yours at Nantucket some weeks ago. At that time I was in doubt as to my course in this campaign. Since then I have come to a definite conclusion.

What I conceive to be the best interests of the people of California impel me to support Mr. Merriam for governor.

I am not "committed" to his support in the way which you possibly have in mind. I have made no pledge, nor have I had any communication directly or indirectly with him or with any representative of his.

I am "committed" merely because of my conviction that he is the best hope of the sound, sensible people of California in this critical emergency.

With all respect to you, sir, the choice for governor in this instance seems clearly to lie between Mr. Sinclair on the one hand—a man who is shockingly unstable in his opinions, and obviously unreliable in his ever varying and conflicting advocacies—and Mr. Merriam on the other hand—a capable and conscientious American, wholly dependable in his proven devotion to the public welfare.

Mr. Merriam can and will defeat Mr. Sinclair; and Mr. Sinclair must be defeated to save the State of California from the serious economic wound, and the permanent political scar, which his election would inflict.

It would be unthinkable to have this great state, and the interests of its millions of worthy citizens, come under the control of an unbalanced and unscrupulous political speculator who would, in the performance of his unsound and sinister program, wreck the very foundations of all prosperity for years to come.

I must, therefore, take the course which I think best calculated to prevent this genuine disaster, and must earnestly support Mr. Merriam for governor.

I do so without any personal prejudice, and with no purpose other than to serve the state in which I was born, and the people among whom I have been reared.

I am sure, sir, that you, in whatever way you think best, will cooperate in the patriotic effort to rebuke a dangerous and discredited demagogue, and to elect an honest and experienced public servant as the chief executive of our state.

Sincerely yours,
W. R. HEARST.

MOTHER TELLS OF DELAY IN WEDDING

wife of Senator William G. McAdoo, saying:

"The marriage will not take place right away."

Hints by friends of De Onate that the couple might elope after the attention following the raising of the racial question had died down, gained credence today.

It was pointed out that in Arizona and Nevada, where many of the movie couples have been wed, there is no law barring marriages between Caucasians and persons of Filipino or Malay blood, such as was available in California.

De Onate, meanwhile, protested that he is a full-blooded Spaniard and therefore would not be affected by the California law. He declared:

"When the time comes I shall have no difficulty in getting my right to obtain a marriage license in this state. Both my parents were born in the Basque country in northern Spain, and I am moved to the Philippines. I was born there, but that does not make me a Filipino."

PROOF NECESSARY

C. D. Clayton, clerk of Riverside County, who said after Miss McAdoo filed marriage intentions with him last Monday that he would not permit the ceremony unless she could prove he is of Spanish descent, said that the county clerk would require, if the proof would be required, his explanation.

"A birth certificate or a passport is not enough. I want proof. He must come to the county clerk and prove to me that he is of Spanish descent. If he cannot meet the requirements of this state, of course he can cross the line to Yuma, Arizona or Las Vegas, Nevada, where so many of the movie people do."

FACE DISINHERITANCE

Indications that Miss McAdoo's father was behind the legal obstacles to the marriage were seen in the statement by Senator McAdoo's lawyer, Colonel William H. Nebel, who said that if she carried out her plan to wed the actor, she would be disinherited.

Colonel Nebel said he had evidence of De Onate's ancestry, which he would produce in court if necessary, and which he claimed would prevent the marriage here.

"The senator was definitely opposed to the marriage, he said, realized that his daughter if of age and legally free to make her own decision, he would do as she said to prevent this match."

"If Ellen goes ahead with her wild plan to marry a man whose father has never seen and of whom he knows nothing, her monthly allowance, which is all the money she has, will be cut off."

"If she elopes to another state and marries, the marriage will not be legal here."

"Ellen may take me now for preventing this wedding. But I am sure she will thank me in years."

Sister Says De Onate's Parents Were Spanish

By International News Service

Manila, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Thomas West, wife of Senator McAdoo, today came to the defense of her brother, Rafael Lopez De Onate, 35-year-old screen actor in his fight in Hollywood, Cal., to become the husband of Ellen McAdoo, granddaughter of President Wilson.

Mrs. West declared her father, Pablo Lopez De Onate, was born in Spain and her mother was a Manila-born Spaniard, Isabel Navarro.

After the death of the father, Mrs. De Onate married Philip C. Whitaker, an American business man, who is still living in Manila following the death of his wife.

Mrs. West, who was married to Thomas M. West in Seattle, Wash., in 1916, declared her brother left Manila in 1912, returning here for a brief visit in 1921. Mrs. West said:

"I am totally unacquainted with Rafael's personal affairs. He always was the smart fellow of the family and very good looking."

At the governor's office it was declared that a passport was issued to Rafael Lopez De Onate in 1923, but Mrs. West declared "that was a different fellow."

West and his wife are represented in the Far West of a Hollywood cosmetics manufacturing concern. West is now in Japan.

Policeman Saves 7 in Gloucester Fire

Gloucester, Oct. 25.—A father, mother and their seven children were saved from suffocation today when a policeman broke into their burning home in Rogers street, and rescued them. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Parfai were taken safely to various rooms when Policeman Alfred Anderson broke down the front door.

The house burned nearly to the ground. Damage was estimated at $2500.

RAFAEL DE ONATE ELLEN MADDOO

Elopement was hinted by friends of Ellen Wilson McAdoo and Rafael Lopez de Onate, her Philippine-born fiance, following announcements that their wedding was postponed when authorities refused them a marriage license unless De Onate could prove himself a pure Spanish blood. Here they are shown on the beach at Santa Barbara, where their romance blossomed. (Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

CATHOLIC WAR BRINGS DEATHS TO MEXICANS

By Associated Press

Mexico, D. F., Oct. 25.—The first deaths resulting from the current official movement against the Catholic church in Mexico were reported today from Queretaro. Missions recently caused them.

Delayed dispatches from Queretaro, just outside the state capital, said police and soldiers fired upon each other when each force mistook the other for persons attempting to prevent carrying out the Governor's order to close all churches. Several were killed and a number wounded.

Anti-Catholic elements, encouraged by the support of General Plutarco Elias Calles to move to bring about the expulsion from Mexico of all archbishops and bishops.

The former President and "supreme chief" of the revolution told deputies and senators who visited him at Cuernavaca that Mexican Catholics were planning a subversive movement, but the government would have how to meet it.

"I am in accord with the majority of states in the plan of action formulated by the Chamber of Deputies against reactionaries and the clergy," he said.

"I regard the expulsion of archbishops as necessary because they are the direct cause of the present activities and especially because they are organizing in preparation for a movement."

A proposal by the Chamber of Deputies for expulsion of archbishops and bishops is still before the directors of the National Revolutionary government.

Roosevelt Town House to Let TWO SURPRISES IN VANDERBILT GIRL BATTLE

By Associated Press

New York, Oct. 25.—A "For Rest" sign has appeared on the town house of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at 47 East 85th street.

The sign bears the name of Alfred E. Scherhorn, Inc., real estate agency.

At the Scherhorn office, it was said the house was for rent for the winter. A spokesman for the firm declared it had been rented several times in the past.

DROUTH KINE LOSS DENIED

By Associated Press

Augusta, Me., Oct. 25.—Rusell W. Davis, assistant director of rural rehabilitation, said today that he had no evidence regarding the contents of drouth cattle in Maine was "unsubstantiated, unfounded or exaggerated."

Losses 1 per cent of the 28,000 cattle in stock yards in Presque Isle, Fryburg and Yarmouth have since arrived here, he said, and added:

"In general, western drouth cattle are being handled in a manner complimentary to the state. Instead of suffering and in part of food, the cattle generally have found comfort and good in most pastures. They have been fed and in most cases are making improvement."

The protest event of its kind in the year—the Annual Used Car Sale, is now running in the Automobile-Dealers' section of the America and Advertiser.

They were Lady Furuseth, sister of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, the child's mother, and a man identified as Lawrence Copley Shaw, brother-in-law of Mrs. Benjamin Shaw, Jr., Mrs. Vanderbilt's sister.

They were called by Nathan Burkan, Mrs. Vanderbilt's attorney. With the exception of Mrs. Vanderbilt's former butler, who testified last week, they were the first witnesses to take the stand in her defense.

Prior to their appearance, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Little Gloria's aunt, finished her testimony. Reports that the child told Justice Clegg yesterday that she wanted to remain with her aunt were confirmed by Mrs. Whitney's counsel. Mrs. Vanderbilt did not appear in the courtroom until noon. She looked pale and drawn.

Lady Furuseth was in black. Her black widow's cap was trimmed with white and fastened with a large diamond earring.

The opposing attorneys conferred with Justice John F. Clegg for 20 minutes before Mrs. Whitney was called, but the nature of the conference was not disclosed.

Herbert C. Smyth, counsel for Little Gloria, told Justice Clegg she wished to remain with her aunt at Old Westbury, L. I.

MAN, 57, NABS ONE IN BREAK

Charles Cronwell is 57 years old, but he trapped out of bed this morning at a woman neighbor's alarm, ran to his store nearby, chased two alleged burglars, and nabbed one after a furious battle in which the captive was nearly killed.

He was seized on the captive, John J. Sullivan, 21, of North avenue, Roxbury, when he was alone at his store in Gloucester street, Sullivan is declared by police to have admitted his companions and to have admitted that he broke into Cronwell's store in Gloucester street.

Sleuths Start the Work of Running Down Criminals in 'The Big Knock-Over'

• By DASHIELL HAMMETT
The author of "THE THIN MAN"

BYOPREIS

The teller of this story—a private detective—feels "there's more trouble in the air" when Benzo, a tipster-newsboy, was shot dead soon after Benzo had tipped off the sleuth about "a caper" being "cracked for the Stranahan's National" bank. Earlier that evening, the detective spotted several notorious crooks from various parts of the United States in San Francisco.

The next forenoon an organized mob (about 150 bandits) seized and looted the aforementioned bank and the Golden Gate Trust Co., killing 16 policemen, wounding about three times that many, murdering 12 bank clerks and bookkeepers, and getting away with lost "trillions" into the millions. The thugs lost seven dead and 31 prisoners "most of them bleeding" in this BIG KNOCK-OVER. The narrator is making his end report to the local chief of his national detective agency.

CHAPTER III

"Get that!" I asked. "Here are a hundred and fifty gunmen, split into groups under group-leaders, with maps and schedules, showing what each man is to do, showing the firing-he's to kneel behind, the brick he's to stand on, where he's to spit—everything but the name and address of the policeman he's to shoot! It's just as well Benzo couldn't give me the details—I'd have written it off as a hop-head's dream."

"Very interesting," the Old Man said, smiling blandly. "The Fat Boy's was the only timetable we found." I went on with my history. "I saw a few friends among the killed and caught, and the police are still identifying others. Some are local talent, but most of 'em seem to be imported stock. Detroit, Chicago, New York, St. Louis, Denver, Portland, L. A., Philly, Baltimore—all seem to have sent delegates. As soon as the police get through identifying them I'll make out a list."

"Of those who weren't caught," Bluepoint Vance seems to be the main squeaker. He was in the car that directed operations. I don't know who else was there with him. The Shivering Kid was in on the festivities, and I think Alphabet Shorty McCoy, though I didn't get a good look at him. Sergeant Bender told me he spotted Toots Galda and Darby McLaughlin in the push, and Morgan saw the Die-and-Dat Kid. That's a good cross-section of the layoff-guys, swindlers, hijackers from all over Rand-Mo-Nally.

SOME NAMES KNOWN

"The Hall of Justice has been a slaughter-house all afternoon. The police haven't killed any of their guests—none that I know of—but they're sure-God making believers of them. Newsboys who look like to sob over what they call the third degree are down there now. After being knocked around a bit, some of the guests were talked. But the hell of it is they don't know a whole lot. They know names—names like Benny Burke, Toby the Lugs, Old Pete Heat, Fat Boy Clarke and Paddy the Mex were named—and that helps some, but all the smacking power in the police force arm can't bring out anything else."

"The racket seems to have been organized like this, Denny Burke, for instance, is known as a shifty

6000-MILE GIRL HUNT ENDS

FOUND, BUT IN MAINE; PARENTS
IN BOSTON

LACK OF FARE HALTS THEM

By MICHAEL CROWLEY

You can scan the pages in the history of parental love and sacrifice for a long, long time before you smack into another yarn like this.

It's the story of a father and mother who took the heart-break trail for 6000 miles in search of a vagabond daughter.

Today, stranded in Boston with resources of one Canadian penny, a milk bottle worth five cents and a gasoline-less back of a car worth little more, they found the girl on the eve of her 24th birthday in Littleton, Me.—120 miles away.

They haven't seen her for more than a year, and now that they've found her they don't get to her. And she wants them now, but she can't get to them.

LAST 100 MILES HARD

It's the last hundred miles that are the hardest in the story of the search conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Clark, for their daughter, Ardath Gertrude Atkinson.

The girl is at the federal reformatory in Portland, trying to raise the money to join her parents here. They are trying to raise enough money here to get to her there.

It was Ardath's dream to be a happy ending but there's a lot of grief attending the anti-dream.

The story goes back to October 1933, when the Atkinsons vanished somewhere in Kansas en route between her Los Angeles home and Crane Junior College in Chicago, where she was a brilliant senior.

The Atkinsons had four children and little money. What they had they spent in the following months for telegram and the hire of private investigators who failed to find any trace of Ardath.

His-Week Executive

Care carries a card that shows him to be director of organization of Los Angeles. And he says: "The salary is $10 a week."

More than six weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson determined to do what police and private detectives had failed to do—find their daughter. They have a son in the CCC. He contributed as much as he could. Neighbors got together and passed the hat and bought some foodstuffs and 106 gallons of gasoline. They also put in commission a 1928 sedan, vintage of better days, that was rustling in the Atkinson backyard, and provided the couple with a small purse.

Sleeping in their car the Atkinsons took the trail east, 2000 miles to Wichita, Kan. There they questioned every driver on the transcontinental bus route on which Ardath was traveling when she vanished.

From there they went to Chicago and from Chicago back south to St. Louis, talking with the police, questioning strangers.

"Have we seen our daughter anywhere?"

From St. Louis they changed to New York. Here and there they picked up a false clue that raised

Convict and Mother of 3 Admit Mailbox Looting

ACE U. S. AGENT PROBES CASE

Nathan Smith, 31, arrested last night in Roxbury during investigation of 150 mail box thefts and the passing of counterfeit money, is a paroled convict out of State Prison only two months, police said today.

Dorothy McArdle, 27, arrested with him, is the mother of three children and the estranged wife of a Worcester man, they said.

Announcement was made by Captain James F. Daley, supervisor of police cases, who questioned the couple at headquarters during a show-up this morning before they were turned over to federal authorities.

He said Smith admitted having served all but 28 months of a 5-10 year sentence for robbery, and being paroled two months ago.

Under questioning in the presence of a stenographer, Smith admitted, police said, that he had plundered 50 mail boxes in Commonwealth avenue and Beacon street apartment houses from the Back Bay district to Allston.

L. McCormack, crack postoffice inspector who secretly investigated thefts after being brought from Washington, said federal authorities want Smith for no less than 150 mail box thefts in Boston, most of them within the last three weeks.

Police said Mrs. McArdle told them she first met Smith when

Smith told police, they said, that he bought 10 $10 counterfeit bills from a man he met after leaving prison through a prison acquaintance.

DEMOCRATS TO CALL ROLL FOR CURLEY

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY
A big Democratic roll call is on in Boston and will be extended to every section of the city.
Every Democrat holding office or who has been honored by the party during the past 20 years, will be asked to stand up and be counted. The count will be accomplished through a series of workmen meetings.
This novel movement started last night in East Boston, where Congressman John J. Douglas presided in Charlestown, under the direction of City Councilor Thomas H. O'Brien, and in the South End, with Congressman-elect John P. Higgins, one of the late Martin J. Lemmon's lieutenants, in charge.
Tonight there will be three workmen meetings. District Attorney William J. Foley will preside in the South End, at the home of Mrs. J. J. Foley, 100 South Street. District Attorney William J. G. A. R. Veteran, 88, Asks Aid for Curley

By FRANK REILLY
While a militant democracy swung into line today behind James M. Curley in his final campaign for the office of Mayor of Boston, Francis J. O'Reilly, 88, a World War veteran of Cambridge, called upon all who were veterans of the war for the former mayor on November 6.
In a statement issued by O'Reilly, who is the vice surviving member of Charles Brock, 24, G. A. R. roll.
"There is no crime so grave as that of ingratitude," O'Reilly said. "Curley has befriended the veterans of all wars. In Boston, he has provided employment for thousands of former service men. He has gone to the front on numerous occasions for disabled veterans. No man has had a greater interest in the welfare of the former soldier or sailor than Mr. Curley."
Tremendous crowds gathered at a dinner Curley raised in Worcester County to pledge their support to the former mayor. At the dinner, State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley of Cambridge, joined the Curley "Victory Parade." He called for the election of the "original Roosevelt man of Massachusetts."
Tonight Curley will speak at Hotel Edison, Lynn, where he will be accompanied by his wife, Helen, and his children, including his son, William, who is a member of the Curley family.

'KING OF IRELAND' MOVEMENT PUSHED Duke of Kent Is Hailed GEORGE'S YOUNGEST SON URGED TO RULE 'UNITED COUNTRY'

PRINCE GEORGE PRINCESS MARINA

While Eamonn De Valera frowns, Anglo-Irish circles praise that Prince George, Duke of Kent and youngest son of George V., and his fiancée, the Princess Marina of Greece, be given the scepter as king and queen of all Ireland. It would unite Ulster and the Free State and bring Ireland into closer harmony with England and the Empire, advocates of the plan say. (Pictures by International News Photograph Service.)

By H. K. REYNOLDS
International News Service Staff Correspondent
London, Oct. 2.—A plan to make the Duke of Kent, King George's youngest son, "King of all Ireland" gained momentum today in Anglo-Irish circles in London.
Those who support the scheme, sensational and grandiose as it is, believe it will be not only the means of re-establishing a united Ireland, but would mark the end of the present cleavage between the Free State and England.
The suggestion that one of the King's sons should rule over Ireland first was put forward by Alexander McCabe, former Free State senator and member of the Dail, and now that the Duke of Kent, who is to be married to Princess Marina of Greece, it is declared that the time would be ripe for crowning the duke and duchess as King and Queen of Ireland.
The "King of Ireland" would be subject to the overlordship of King George as King-Emperor.

Opposition Seen
Eamonn De Valera, Free State President, of course, would be stubbornly opposed to such a scheme or any other proposal to increase the waning authority of the British royal family in Ireland. He wants an Irish republic which would include Ulster, or Northern Ireland, as well as the Free State.
There are many Royalists and Anti-Separatists in the Free State, however, who are just as sincere in their efforts to keep Ireland within the British empire.
"If Prince George and Princess Marina could be set up as a national king and queen of all Ireland," declared an Irish senator quoted by the London Celtic, weekly political paper, "an era not only of peace but of economic prosperity and happiness would be at once provided for this nation."
It would provide that one spark needed to unite all the peoples of this troubled land.
Please People
Ireland does not hate England. But it is a country that never forgets, and for centuries it has harbored intense bitterness for the harshly savage treatment of its people under Cromwell.
The people of Ireland would like nothing better than see a son of King George established as their ruler, for we should then be treated as a nation and a great people. If we had a ruler who would win over the whole of Ireland, look in the north and in the south,

Jealousy Cruel, Pastor Says SUSPICIONS OF WIFE PREYED ON MIND

Fitchburg, Oct. 2.—Within the next week, the resignation of the Reverend Otto E. Duerer as minister of the Unitarian Church at Templeton becomes effective for "the good of the parish." In the meantime the clergyman is trying to divorce his wife.
Grounds named in the suit begun at probate court are cruel and abusive treatment, but counsel for the Reverend Mr. Duerer charged that Mrs. Duerer was so jealous she suspected her husband of infidelity and relations with women and caused rumors that "preyed upon" his mind and health.
Mrs. Duerer said she objected strenuously to Mrs. Marion Greenwood, a parishioner, caring for the Reverend Mr. Duerer when he became ill. According to testimony Mrs. Greenwood also offered her care "for the good of the parish."

HE 'CO-EDS' Stalk Sluggish

By Associated Press
Boulder, Colo., Oct. 2.—Husky football players dressed in women's clothes waited in vain throughout the night in an effort to trap the phantom slugs who have beaten nine of the University of Colorado coaches. Aroused by the vicious attacks of an apparently determined man, gridders joined several scores of other student volunteers in patrolling the streets.
Chief of Police R. C. Prater said today he believed the slugs had left the city.

TATTOO FOR SOLDIERS

Washington, Oct. 2.—Every American soldier would be tattooed, under a plan now before the War Department.
As a means of identifying dead and wounded, tattooing is advocated by Lieutenant C. L. Whittle, of Fort Ontario, New York, in the Infantry Division. High officials view the idea sympathetically.
He tentatively suggests the marks be tattooed on each shoulder and each hip. Whittle believes a number would be simplest.

MAIL MADE Honeymoon Starts

By International News Service
New York, Oct. 2.—Countess Eugenie Zich, of Prague and Chicago, and her mail-order sister, Theodore Rabach, Philadelphia chemist, today were on their honeymoon.
They were married last night in a downtown hotel by Charles Francis, founder of the First Humanist Society, after learning a three-day delay in obtaining a marriage license was unnecessary here.
The groom placed a ring containing 36 small stones and an oriental sapphire on his bride's finger.
Mrs. Nello Brooke Stull, Ellyn, O., "love expert," who takes credit for bringing the pair together, accompanied the couple.
Efforts were made to bring Jacob Miller, Catholic machinery manufacturer and another of the mail-order sister, to act as best man, but he could not be located. The couple will live in Chicago.

RAVIO CARDS ARE HERE OVER GERMAN FRONT

The spectre of ration cards in Germany this winter hangs over the heads of the millions serving in the industrial "army" at the Nazi regime. H. R. Knickerbocker, noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, writes in the fourth article of his new series "Democracy Versus Dictatorship."

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Berlin, Oct. 25.—Germany joined the army when she adopted the Nazi dictatorship. Each citizen gave up his liberty in precisely the same way as a soldier gives it up when he dons the uniform. Those who did not volunteer were conscripted.

National Socialism promised that army methods would enlighten the mass of captives. It promised that business would be run in the interests of all. Discipline would give the proper man a man's more, the girl man sufficient. "Common good goes before the good of the individual," was the prime slogan.

How has the common good of Germany been served by the Nazi regime? That is the logical question, and it is not the question that is in the minds of Germans today. The question they are asking is much more specific.

"Will ration cards be issued this winter?"

The government says "no."

LACK OF CEREALS

On the other hand the rumors persist and there are persons who have seen ration cards already printed.

The rumors may be dismissed, but the facts are these. Due to the hostility of the outside world, the country faces a deficit of food in the coming winter. There will be enough to feed the people, but there will not be enough to feed the cattle.

Germany never has produced enough food to feed herself. Normally she imports the necessary extra quantity. This year she has produced less than usual, and this year for the first time she has asked the earner the credits to buy abroad.

The fact that she has asked less than usual is not the Nazis' fault. The fact that she lacks the purchasing power necessary to overcome the deficit with imports is clearly due to Nazi policy towards Jews, Liberals, Democrats, foreigners, liberty, debt and war.

CROP YIELDS OFF

Germany normally produces between fifty and sixty million tons of all food crops expressed in "grain equivalents." Impartial outsiders estimate that her deficit this year is at a maximum around three million, and most probably around five million tons in grain equivalents.

The missing five million tons of grain or its equivalent is chiefly needed for cattle feed. If the hog is not fed enough there will be less milk, and if the cow is not fed enough there will be less milk, butter and cheese. If there is nothing to feed them they must be killed.

What are the alternatives? First, foreign credits. They are excluded by world reaction to Nazi policy, second, better.

Two examples will suffice to illustrate with what ingenuity and determination the government is striving to meet the food deficit by better arrangements. From Norway the Germans have arranged to get 150,000 tons of wheat in exchange for German goods.

NOY BEAN TRADE

The have arranged a most interesting trade with Japan-Morocco for 400,000 tons any beans in exchange for chemicals.

This quantity of beans at current market prices is worth about a million dollars. What sort of chemicals products the Germans will furnish the Japanese at this stage of Japan's military career is a question that is of particular APPHIRE BLUE BAGHERA with silver lame trimmings adorned Mary Hastings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hastings of Beacon street, when she was presented today at a tea-dance at the Ritz-Carlton. The dress was of gardenia and bougainvillea. Mrs. Hastings received with her daughter, wearing a black and silver gown and a corsage of lavender orchids...

Miss Hastings attended Beaver Country Day School and Miss May's School, and is planning to study in Europe immediately after Christmas. Assisting at the tea tables today were Miss Ernestine Hills, head pouter; Mrs. Henrick Pip (Virginia Hastings), a sister of the debutante; Miss Kathleen Maynard, Miss Nancy Holdsworth, Miss Olivia Stone, Miss Elizabeth Everitt, Miss Jean Tuckerman, Miss Eleanor Clifton, Miss Peggy Macomber, Miss Martha Edicott, Miss Ruth Edmonds, Miss Alice Perry, Miss Evelyn Hasman and Evelyn Weatherby, a post-debutante.

Among the guests will be Miss Ardelle Moselle, Miss Margaret Burnett, Miss Geraldine Field, Miss Jane Bogardus, Miss Elizabeth Hollis, Miss Priscilla Hoyt, Miss Dorothy McKee, Miss Leona Kimball and Miss Hope Blanchard...

Also Messrs. Albert Dewey, George Wightman, Howard Johnson, Perry Johnson, Malcolm Curtis, Jr., Hollis Seevey, Edward Bienenhe, Albert Berry, Alfred Shrigley, William Baxton and Herbert Vose. Miss Hastings will give a party later in honor of her pouters.

Club Dance Planned
CARDS ARE OUT FOR A TEA-DANCE at the Oakley Country Club on Wednesday, November 7th, from four until seven o'clock, in honor of Miss Priscilla Gano, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth Thomas Gano... Miss Gano is one of the attractive petite blondes of this year's bouquet and was presented earlier in the summer at a large luncheon at her home on Clark road, Belmont.

Peacock green crepe with matching hat was the luncheon costume of Miss Sally Blackman, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Blackman of Walnut street, Brookline, when she greeted her guests at noon at the Ritz-Carlton today... Miss Blackman received with her daughter in dark brown silk with gold lame sleeves and brown hat.

There were five tables of eight young guests each and among the guests were Miss Helen McPherson, Miss Anne Wicks, Miss Beatrice Payson, Miss Susan Clark, Miss Gertrude Faber, Miss Martha Bird, Miss Jean Jacoby, Miss Mary Benton, Miss Gertrude Burgess, Miss Elizabeth Everitt, Miss Rita Faunce, Miss Barbara Stevens, Miss Janet Marston, Miss Nancy Paxson, Miss Mary Hastings, Miss Janet Scudder, Miss Evelyn Hasman, Miss Peggy Lanson, Miss Lydia Lyman, Miss Josephine Mather and Miss Olive Perry.

Hayes Concert Attracts Leaders
GLIMPSED IN THE LARGE AUDIENCE who attended the Roland Hayes' concert in Jordan Hall last evening, the first in the "Celebrity Series" which Aaron Richmond is presenting and one of the four from which Denison House will benefit, were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Murchie with two very distinguished ladies from Montreal, Mrs. Murchie very handsome in blue velvet evening cloak, a very beautiful woman, Mrs. Philip Spalding, in sports tweeds, Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney in red crepe and her daughter, Miss Margaret in black with scarlet velvet jacket, Mrs. Frank M. Sawtelle, Mrs. George H. Monk, Mrs. Edgar Pierce.

Also Miss Lucy Lowell, Miss Edith Moir, Miss Katherine French, Miss Emily Reed, Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Mrs. Howard Sprague, Mrs. Lucian Thayer, Mrs. Malcolm Lang, Mrs. Richard D. Fay and many other Hayes' enthusiasts. Mr. Hayes was a joy to hear, his voice is so rich and expressive, his diction so perfect and he seems to vibrate in every nerve to the music of his songs. We had a grand time...

Speaking of voices, we have never enjoyed the singing of a quartette more than we did on Tuesday at the Advertising Club luncheon at the Hotel Statler when the Knickerbocker Quartette rendered "Song of Songs" and "Daddy"... Mr. Walter Kidder, baritone, simply stole the show from the visiting guest from New York, we think.

Tea Dance for Miss Fuller
MRS. LINLEY JOHNSON and her debutante daughter, Miss Charlotte Smith, are spending the winter at the Hotel Victoria... also at the Victoria are Mr. and Mrs. B. Devereaux Barker, who are not opening their West Cedar street house this season. They are making a long stay at their Marlborough estate this fall...

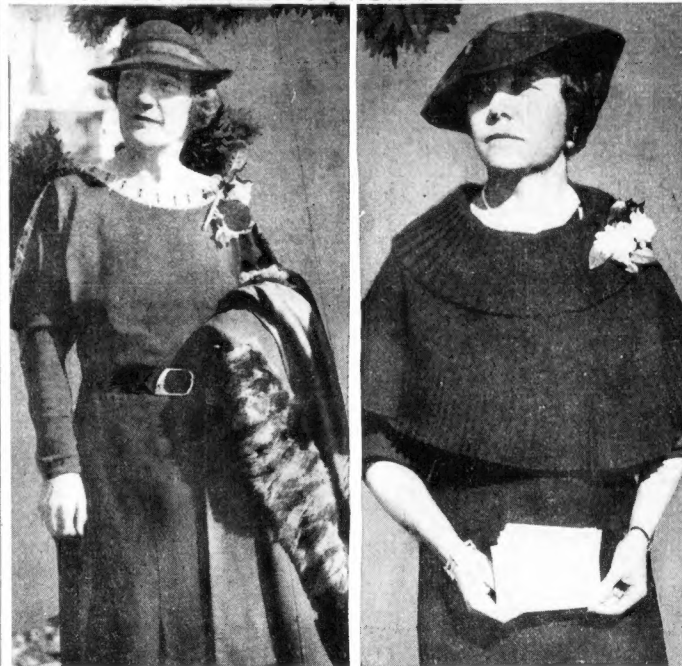

Mrs. Louis Curtis, Jr., is giving a dance at the Ritz-Carlton soon for three of the season's buds...

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller is giving a tea-dance at her home on Beacon street for her debutante daughter, Mary, on November 14... later a large dance will be given in her honor.

Miss Nora Isagi Bullitt, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Marshall Bullitt of Louisville, Kentucky, will be presented on November 15 at a dance at 261 Marlborough street, the residence of Mrs. Samuel Warren, when the Bullitts have taken for the season. This evening Miss Bullitt is giving a dinner party for a few of her sister debutantes and friends.

Notes Along the Line

By BRAYO

G & S IN EXCELLENCE
The D'Oyly Carte company of London—the traditional interpreters of the musical comedy—will give a performance of "The Pirates of Penzance" and "The Mikado" at the Ritz-Carlton, Friday evening, October 26th.

MISS PRISCILLA GANO, above, who was one of the debutantes who acted as models at the fashion luncheon held at the Club Touraine yesterday.

Debs Model At Fashion Show Luncheon

FASHION LUNCHEONS with debutantes parading the newest creations in the fashion world and Midway reviewing the parade from her table, are becoming very popular diversions in the social world. The Club Touraine has inaugurated a series of weekly luncheons on Wednesdays with the season's debutantes as models.

Two blonde and winsome members of this year's bouquet of debs who modeled yesterday with Miss Priscilla Gano and Miss Rita Faunce, Miss Faunce has already stepped over the social threshold and Miss Gano's parents have just issued invitations for a tea dance in her honor on November 7, at the Oakley Country Club.

In the large crowd of diners who filled the Club Touraine at the luncheon hour yesterday were Mrs. Melrose Bradley French and Mrs. Charles Hester, with a party of friends. Mrs. George J. Dunham, with Mrs. William H. Goldsmith, Mrs. Charles H. Minter, Mrs. Thomas H. Pitham, Mrs. William L. Farley and Miss Virginia L. Davis, Doris Kimball, Rosemary Harris, Barbara Foote and Joan Hawley.

Halloween Party Held by Bankers

Women bankers and bank employees of Boston were guests at a Halloween dinner and entertainment at the First National bank.

The program was under the auspices of the Women's Division of Boston chapter, Inc. American Institute of Banking. Miss Perine L. George of the National Shawmut Bank was in charge.

Plane Combs Wilderness Seeking Bridal Pair

Went on Canoe Journey WERE PRINCIPALS IN TREE-TOP ROMANCE BEFORE WED

Dover-Foxcroft, Me., Oct. 25—An ominous absence of any clues today shadowed the wilderness search for Robert Webster, former Melrose (Mass.) resident, and his young bride, missing on the famous Allegash river canoe trip.

The couple, principals in a "tree-top" romance that caused Webster's society wife to divorce him a year ago, have been gone nearly five weeks on the adventure of a life 12 days overdue at their destination, St. Francis on the St. John river, at the Maine-Canada border.

"It was ghastly," said Juliet sitting on the edge of the bed and throwing the hair back from her pale face. "I was almost dead at any moment."

"Didn't I tell her though?" declared Kettie with a gasp of pain. "Can you imagine the old doctor bent in two with Mr. O'Hara and accusing you of coming to poison Juliet? What a what! How me up."

"And they got her downstairs to fight!" cried Juliet.

"Oh sure! I proved up a lot. I was both carrying on. I certainly feel sorry for Mr. O'Hara."

A question—a very real question—came to Juliet's mind. "I wonder why that Juliet and I were so little struggled in my arms."

"You said something to me. I didn't know and I was so glad to see you out of harm's way. I thought if O'Hara loved me, I would let you. I let that—"

"Did I say that?"

"You did."

"Oh I must have been a little distracted. The old devil took me from under me and I couldn't see you imagine? Naturally, I think quite a lot of Mr. O'Hara. I think I must have believed him a scoundrel. But he never hurt me and anything about being in love with me. I don't suppose a embarrassed him. I'm saying that right out at Juliet's feet."

Juliet was conscious of a growing and a burning sensation in her girl's eye.

"The whole affair was a little too big for me," said Juliet, despatching a look at Kettie. "I don't know how to make out of this. You had better come to your bed."

A la Louzanne
Or in the Manner
Of Kingfish Huey
By AUSTEN LAKE

WE ARE READING how Senator Huey Long, who in appearance resembles Shindig Billy Watson with his burlesque makeup on, has been busy scattering confetti dollars on the campus at Louisiana State University, giving away several thousand dollars' worth to students wishing of seeing their team play Vanderbilt at Nashville, Tenn., Saturday.

This is apt to be misconstrued by colleges which are on Louisiana's football schedule, which, like everything else in that state, belongs to Senator Long.

And opponents must reasonably feel that if Senator Long has funds to shower down on meaningless pupils, he must have a stockpile of lobby burlap tucked and tucked halfway into college.

I doubt that the Kingfish would be fastidious where a box office attraction is concerned. Because the senator is well equipped to deal with matters involving public faith and credibility.

There are UNLIMITED possibilities in anything Senator Long interested himself within the boundaries of his kingdom. Michaps have often happened to his political rivals, like night-time slugfests and unseemly kidnappings, in which the senator is always careful to be technically innocent.

It would be a big advantage to Louisiana State, for example, if Vanderbilt's star quarterback should come up missing before Saturday and be detained by certain sinister people in a woody hideout over the week-end. Or, if the senator's personal guard should find a corn field, the fox preceded by a husky pup, and wave their small arms, or rescue, suggestively.

Corcoran is a familiar tool in the Kingfish's political kit. And it would be only normal if his gun crew stepped, while patting their holster pockets, that the officials give Louisiana none the worst of it, or else.

I remark on this because if it ever occurs to Senator Long that a national football championship would be useful to his state, you may be sure, by hook or otherwise, Louisiana would have one.

The senator, unhindered by scruples of the amateur sort, would deliver it all bound round with a candy box ribbon.

MEMBERS OF THE OREGON HUNT CLUB, of which Mr. George Timmons is the M. P. H., are telling about a rowdy fox which hunts to hunting rules and proclivities the hounds.

At the last hunt meeting, with the Grotton members in their scarlet coats and hard hats, the hounds unearthed a little red fox which shuttled away. A batch of puppy hounds, apprentices to the business, tore ahead of the adult pack.

Reynard, grinning over his shoulder, slowed down and joined the novice hounds. Last seen, on good terms, they were disappearing into a corn field, the fox preceded by a husky pup, and everybody but the club members happy.

If you ask me, it's another case of Red propaganda. Grotton at its pups back, but the critic escaped.

LIFE FOR JOE MCCARTHY is simpler since Babe Ruth divorced himself from the Yankees and announced, via a typewritten slip to the series press box at Detroit, that he could be had as a manager.

Last season Joe sat like a sweet, elderly chaperone beside Babe and tried to be polite, knowing all the while the dearest ambition to Babe's heart was to get his job.

It was something of a scene to visit the Yankee bench before games and see Joe and Babe perched on the dugout seats, trying to look innocent and neighborly, when each were consumed inwardly by flames of suspicion and envy.

Babe was always a "great fella" with Joe, when we correspondents enquired. And Joe was a "dandy guy" to Babe for public display. It was a show of outward tolerance that fooled nobody and provided a lot of secret comedy to the writers.

Now, in safeguarding Joe's job by sparring Ruth's whispering, Colonel Jack Ruppert, who is a sound dollar man, was his own investments are concerned, has made it plain that he expects a pennant in 1935. Vaguely, Joe remembers having heard that somewhere before. In fact, the late Bill Wrigley made such a demand on Joe in 1930 with the Chicago Cubs. And Joe, failing to die in the stretch, found himself under. History has a reputation way.

"Hell, if we can't make a touchdown, we don't deserve the win."

The forensic old fella, K. M. Landis, replies to my mail query about Senator Joe McCarthy, who in the last World Series game to assuage the passion of the Detroit mob by writing:

"In the cold dawn of reason, or the calm twilight of retrospect, either way, I did the only logical thing. Reviewing my decision at this distance, I have no regrets."

Well, whatever the newspaper may say about that, as a tongue-in-cheek, or an eye-on-the-front-page decision, I, too, think that the Ole Judge did a workmanlike job in that instance, considering that there was only time to take from the lip of the.

Colgate Will o' the Wisp From Woburn to Dance at H. C.

Mary McDonough of Woburn, great halfback of Andy Kerr's Colgate team, fills against Holy Cross at Worcester on Saturday. McDonough's blinding speed and shiftness make him a major threat to H. C. That perfect record of the Crusaders may be cracked by McDonough and his pals.

By Walter Kiley
Worcester, Oct. 25.—For months Holy Cross sympathizers have been taking and dreaming of an invitation to the Holy Bowl game.

Through it all Dr. Eddie Anderson has remained quiet. The Purple coach, faced by a hazardous schedule, not the least of the pitfalls being Colgate, Saturday's opponent, has been content to take each game to itself, letting the future take care of itself.

Today Dr. Eddie launched forth on the subject for the first time. "It's all time and good to visualize a trip to the East Bowl. There is none who would appreciate the better any more than I. It means honor and success and personal glory."

"But Holy Cross, even if it goes there, will not make up its mind to trek to California, first we must be invited."

"Try as I will, I just can't visualize a Holy Cross getting that invitation. The committee in charge can ask whom it wants. It doesn't always select the best team."

BATTLE OF LINES
"So until such time as we actually receive the request, I will stick to more immediate problems, the greatest and most pressing of which is Andy Kerr's Red Raiders, who come to Worcester with one of the best teams of recent years."

"A week ago, I stated that the Harvard Holy Cross game would result itself into a battle of backfields. Results proved my prediction correct."

"I go a step further now and suggest that the Holy Cross-Colgate game will be a battle of lines. Kerr's Harvard men are as big and powerful as ours. They are hard and fast chargers on the offense and lovers of strength on the defense."

Look at the Colgate record. Only two touchdowns scored against it in 28 games covering a period of three years.

Under Andy Kerr, the team was Eastern champion with Pitt in '26, Eastern champion in 1928, and again in 1932 when it was undefeated, untied and unpenetrated.

"You ask why Holy Cross failed to pile up more yardage with its running attack against the Crusaders. The answer is fairly obvious."

"Fella, I say, throughout most of the game, brought up its secondary into the line, but that Harvard was using a nine man line. Three men alone were put on the line, and the rest were in the backfield as named the greatest raiders in the country."

RAIDERS AT BROWFIELD
"The only thing to do against such a line was to take to the air. We did. Success followed, and over a time one saw the new running play in the bag."

Nothing But 'Shushes' At Harvard Camp

Harvard is keeping its football scheme a deep, dark secret these days, which seems like a naughty trick to play on the Dartmouth, especially since the Dartmouth will allegedly be the second of the Harvard over the week-end.

Behind a tight line that is supposed to be a secret, the Harvard coaches and assistant coaches are beginning to radiate a certain amount of shushes.

Curley a GREAT MAYOR; He Will Make a GREAT GOVERNOR

IN less than two weeks, Massachusetts elects a governor for two years.

If faithful public service is to have its just reward, and if the state is to have the leadership demanded by the times, James M. Curley must be seated in the State House.

For the best interests of the Commonwealth, there is no alternative to Mr. Curley's election.

Happily, it is equally true that he is not only the best fitted of the candidates but the best qualified of any citizen to assume the paramount responsibilities that a man acknowledges with the solemn oath of the governorship.

As to Mr. Curley, there is no necessity of having to guess what kind of leadership he offers.

The proof of any man's claims to qualification for any public office to which he may aspire lies in the record of his past service.

There is none to challenge the record of Mr. Curley's public service. Nor is there any to challenge the record of his private life.

It is, perhaps, because there are no blemishes to be found in the open history of Mr. Curley's past activities that so much stress is being placed by his opponents on inconsequential matters.

The campaign has reached that stage, attained in every campaign, when candidates faced with likely defeat are prone to fasten upon personalities, exaggerate claims and charges and, by that ancient resort appropriately called humbug, attempt to divert the electorate from the main issues.

Any such tactics on the part of Mr. Curley's opponents must of necessity fail in view of his proven worth.

From three Curley administrations, Boston has a monumental heritage that cannot be computed in dollars and cents. That heritage demonstrates beyond any question of doubt Mr. Curley's ability efficiently, honestly and humanely to discharge the broader responsibilities of governor.

When James M. Curley bowed out of the mayor's office at the conclusion of his third term (completed in the city's hour of need after the declaration of an ambassadorship tendered by President Roosevelt) he left behind:

An $11,000,000 hospitalization group, the most complete of any municipality in the world;

A $58,000,000 public school system upon which there is a debt of only $3,000,000;

A $24,000,000 half-pay pension fund for city employees;

A Credit Union system which has loaned $4,000,000 to city workers at one-half of one per cent interest, monthly;

A public health department and associated units which have made Boston the healthiest big city in the nation;

A park department, including municipal beaches, which for beauty and practicability measures up to any in the land.

Those are but a few of the bequests to the taxpayers of Boston from the Curley administrations.

Probably the most graphic example of Mr. Curley's ability to vision and meet the changing needs of the people in the changing times was the manner in which he discharged Boston's obligations to the needy during the worst of the depression.

The bread line and the soup kitchen, common in the other great cities as unemployment upset the economic system, were non-existent in Boston.

For city workers here, there were no payless pay days such as were necessary elsewhere.

Yet Boston's needy fared better, probably, than the needy of any other big community, and at the same time were not called upon to shed their self-respect.

The vast sums Boston spent for welfare, preserving the stomachs and the hopes of the poor, were paid by Boston's mayor from tax monies.

It would have been a simple enough matter for Mr. Curley to have borrowed for welfare and so saddled the burden of the debt upon succeeding administrations.

There would have been few to blame him.

But Mr. Curley meets his own problems, and he does not shift his burdens.

All the proof of the kind of governor James M. Curley will be there in the open record, for all to inspect.

Fliers' Voices Call for Preparedness

THE voices of American airmen are added to those calling for American national preparedness.

Since prophets are without honor in their own country, Commander Frank Hawks and Ivor Sikorsky will doubtless be called a couple of crackpots for warning of the dangers of air attacks on our great cities.

Commander Hawks told the President's Aviation Commission that a plane could now fly, non-stop, from Shanghai to New York in forty-eight hours. A like flight to Boston or Newport, say, naval bases, would take about the same time.

Commander Hawks conceding that these planes would not return, added:

"There are plenty of young Japanese warriors who would willingly sacrifice their lives for the chance to fly on to New York and destroy our skyscrapers with their bombs. It wouldn't be bombs, unfortunately, but more probably poison gas, which would wipe out the population of Manhattan and adjacent areas."

Mr. Sikorsky visualized for the committee airplanes carrying 500-pound bombs (100 bombs to a plane), spreading desolation over cities by criss-crossing paths of destruction a mile in length.

Commander Hawks urged the strengthening of Alaska, the Aleutian Islands and Hawaii to prevent their capture by an enemy in wartime and conversion into enemy air bases.

ADVOCATES of unpreparedness will at once dismiss these statements as the ravings of sensationalists, or as sales talk to scare the Government into buying more airplanes.

Elderly admirals and generals will write to the papers to say that aviation never has cut much of a figure in war, and hence never will.

And the Government, we suppose, will do nothing one way or the other—leaving choice sites for enemy bases unfortified, and an adequate fleet of American planes unbuild.

Perhaps the best thing for the average citizen to do, under the circumstances, is to dig a private "storm cellar" for himself and family in case of emergency.

But that is a little difficult in our big coastal cities.

The more we city dwellers think of it, the more we must conclude that when the next war comes we are going to be out of luck!

Unless we wisely make needed preparations for national defense.

Human Side of the News; World's Wealthiest Man

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HARVEST METEORITE NEWS

Three hundred and thirty-four years ago, a Japanese woman started a business enterprise which has grown through the centuries into the fortune of the late, Mrs. A. C. Curley, Rockefeller children, and which today extends the life of the world's wealthiest man.

Today back of this powerful position is the greatest monument of the ancient status fortune, a world wide technical, industrial and financial establishment which thrives forward the sharp-edged peace-time challenge of recent decades—possibility of centuries.

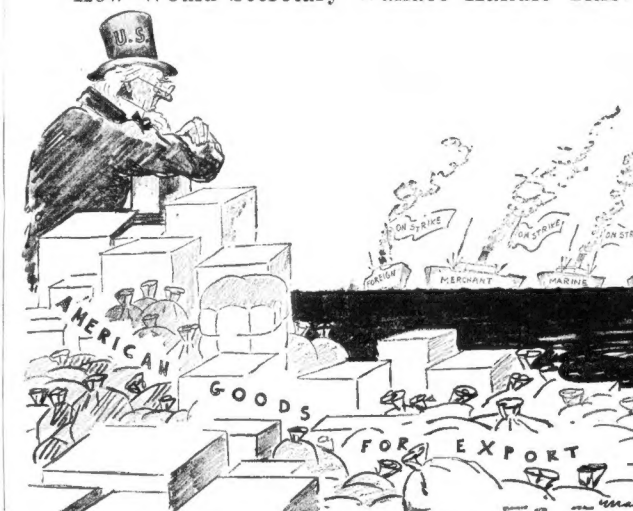

And, motivating, energizing and guiding all this is the penetrating intelligence of a little old man, Baron Hirschman, the last, but of the descendants of that daughter of the Samurai who, in the year 1600, turned from the ancient life of Japanese women.

MADE FINE WINE

The beautiful Schubo, an excellent bit of chocolate, served in the gentle clatter of luxury and elegance, marked Takahashi, the Prince of Chigo, seen of an old and famous family. She was here, playing the lady and making proper genuflections to her sister in the staff wild castle.

It happened that the Chigo came to the staff wild castle. One day, the prince, riding home, was surrounded to find a sign. The Prince of Chigo's excellent wine for sale here."

How Would Secretary Wallace Handle This?

When the World War broke out, and European nations called their ships out of transatlantic trade, this country faced a serious problem.

Depending mainly on foreign vessels, we found ourselves hampered in transporting our exports abroad and bringing our imports in. For weeks, railroads leading to seaboard were blocked with freight.

President Roosevelt referred to that experience in his recent declaration that the American merchant marine would continue to be aided by the Federal Government.

Not only war can choke our ocean trade. A foreign shipping strike would do the same, if we depended on foreign ships.

These are some of the reasons why Secretary Wallace's idea of "ploughing under" the ships we have and relying on foreigners is silly.

W. Walter Ferguson, who writes columns for and about women, doesn't like Mae West. "But she is still reputed on all feminine fronts. The applause is feeble from the boudoirs."

Men give up Mae just because she's a woman. "Mama speak!" I wonder: May be have sunk the world would ever known, either. I still can't believe it. Mae West, I think, is a woman who is a woman, by the way. A woman who is a woman, by the way. A woman who is a woman, by the way.

Registrar Ryan's Good Advice to Motorists

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan, through a new column of the Boston Evening American, gives some very good advice to motorists.

Early dusk, frequently cloudy weather and fallen leaves that mark Fall's progress are accident factors, Mr. Ryan points out.

The first two make many motorists hurry to get home, and hurry is too often accompanied by carelessness in driving. The leaves cause skidding.

Since YOU do not wish to kill or injure anyone, be sure YOU don't yield to the seasonal urge for haste.

Mr. Ryan also finds that the coming of cold weather makes many drivers hurry to get home where it is warm.

We suggest that ALL Winter drivers put heaters in their cars. Heaters can be had at low cost. And Mr. Ryan shows us the heater may be a "life saver" for pedestrians as well as for motorists.

Our Vanished Exports

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

SINCE the depression began we have had an increasing demonstration of the manner in which the world away from the ideals of reasonably free trade.

Sentimental internationalists weep over the new tendencies. But prudent statesmen and business executives examine the basic facts, and they find them underfoot.

It is commonly thought that Europe has taken less good here because its purchasing power has shrunk since 1929.

This is not entirely the case. While our exports and our so-called favorable trade balances have been shrinking in a spectacular manner, Europe since 1929 has in fact been heavily increasing her investments in the United States.

Such funds of course could have been employed, if desired, to import American merchandise. But European nations do not want our commodities or merchandise on the same scale as before because of the vastly improved new trend toward economic self containment.

From this viewpoint, it appears that a drastic cut in the American tariff would not necessarily augment our exports, but would allow more competitive foreign merchandise to come in.

The proceeds of the tariff reductions, it might well be argued, would be used to buy American investments in foreign countries.

In the crazy quill of international accounts, while the outside world has been increasing its surplus investments here, it nevertheless has increased its debt to us by $1,700,000,000.

An outside world embroiled in our money markets during tense periods by converting short term investments into cash.

Bodiless defiance on war debts and certain private long term obligations, the outside world will not be so easily deceived. It will not be so easily deceived. It will not be so easily deceived.

Foreign American short term investments, therefore, are in another delinquency of $200,000,000 in interest due to private American investors.

Likewise, through blocked exchange, our exporters are unable to bring $100,000,000 in foreign currencies.

These interferences added to the obstacles to unrestricted international trade.

Seeing the growth of economic nationalism, forcing American business men have sought for many years to get into foreign trade walls and have thus

For invested $7,000,000,000 in plants and equipment in other countries since 1921.

These foreign plants supply foreign demand, and are formerly met by direct American exports.

As a result of the decreased foreign demand for the products of American agriculture and industry, our exports and imports have receded to the pre-war levels, and our so-called favorable balance of trade has dropped to below the pre-war basis.

Meanwhile, the immense accumulation of war and post-war debt has left the channels of international commerce clogged and cluttered.

It becomes increasingly evident that the new settling down represents an approach to a post-war normal, there has been an effort on the part of aggressive countries to salvage a fraction of a diminished international market through reciprocity treaties.

In the period ahead, foreign trade will be based on a natural interchange.

This country will buy abroad the raw materials, such as tea, coffee, rubber, and so on, which it requires and perhaps certain luxuries and war goods, and it will pay for such purchases.

This costed $750,000,000 in 1929, and it is estimated that the farmers and industrialists who produce the goods for export to a boom foreign demand for their products will have to reduce their operations to the new realities.

To an increasing extent, prosperity will depend on expanding exports, and on reducing domestic living standards.

Thus, in the period ahead, good economy will of necessity go hand in hand with good business.

(This is the last of a series of articles dealing with our changing foreign trade prospects—Ed.)
